

Laps and lapses (2001)

For Sibylle Johner and Phil Green

In this variation of the traditional sonata principle, the usual components of structural harmonic tension and opposing musical subjects are embodied in the mutually exclusive musical language of each instrument. The two instruments are in a race of sorts (laps) and occasionally get lost in mid-race mind wandering (lapses).